Who: Filip Casey, Sneha Yendluri, Mackenzie Elmhirst, Kelly Walsh, Alex Pedersen, and Sultan Alshakrah

Project Description: A 200 word summary of the project

- This project lets the user explore music from different countries around the globe. This application collects music data from a multitude of countries and lets users find music based upon which country they choose to explore. Countries are selected using an interactive world map, providing an easy to use interface for new and returning users. Based on the user's country selection, the app randomly pulls 50 music projects from that country via the Discogs' database and displays them to the user. The user can then choose to view the details of a project, like the artist and producer, as well as other similar releases. When viewing a project, the user can sample the music and listen to it directly from the webpage. The webpages use the embedded Spotify player to allow users to sample songs. We used the Discogs API to collect the project data (name, artist, date, label, etc). Then, with the label name, we can correlate the project to a country by finding the label's geographic origin. The website also allows users to create accounts which could be enabled to track listening history, or link a user's local account to their favorite streaming service with further testing and development.

Contributions:

- Filip Casey:
 - I primarily worked on the backend of the website. I populated our database using web scraping and calls to music database APIs. I also wrote some of the endpoints on our website to ensure that the database information was being accessed and displayed correctly. To do this I worked with docker, heroku, python and nodejs.

- Sneha Yendluri:

I worked on the website logo, login and the registration page. I used visual studio code, github, Jira and docker.

    small fixes to using the json, printing the dynamic elements to screen, and punctuation

- Mackenzie Elmhirst:

- Worked on the server and country pages, primarily on dynamically generated elements and queries. I also made the wireframes and assisted with written work.
- I used Visual Studio Code, GitHub, Jira, PostgreSQL, and NodeJS.

    Milestone 2 Folder and my contribution

- Kelly Walsh:
 - Implemented the map using simple maps
 - Html and Js
 - Created a countries.json file that we then added to our database that had a name, description, image, and link for every country on the site, this can be seen in the music page of all countries.
 - Created the about page with a description of our website
 - Html, Nodejs, Js
 - Created the footer
 - Html, Nodejs, Js
 - Created the demonstration video
 - I used VSCode, GitHub, Docker, Jira

Alex Pedersen:

- Made the music information page and its associated sql queries
 - Used ejs to build the webpage
 - Used NodeJS and PostgresSQL for the webpage queries
- Made the grid view for the country page
 - Using ejs and bootstrap
- Hosted the web server @ <http://luna-server.ddns.net:3000/>
 - Used no-ip for the dns
 - Hosted on a PC running the Ubuntu Server OS
- Configured Mocha onto the server and test cases
